REPORT NO.

1. Darmasetiawan states that if the Dutch proposals include leaving military authority in Dutch hands, the plan will be vetoed by either Anak Agung Gde Agung or Djumhana (Prime Minister of West Java). To be adopted any plan must have a unanimous vote.
2. Darmasetiawan says that the Indonesians are prepared to agree to substantial economic concessions, such as extension of Dutch-leased property for estate development, but that they will never alter their stand on the military question.
3. He believes that if the Federalists and the Republicans turn down the new Dutch proposals, the cabinet in The Hague will fall.
